The 2010 Australian and New Zealand History of Education Society (ANZHES) conference theme invites participants to explore connections and ruptures between 'Centre and Periphery' in diverse settings: Indigenous and non-Indigenous; rural and metropolitan; pre-colonial, colonial and post-colonial; northern and southern; eastern and western; metropole and empire; gender regimes and divides; class structures; ages and life stages; central management and teachers; as well as across spaces, temporalities and geographies.

A feature of the conference will be an Indigenous Histories of Education Symposium exploring the conference theme within Australian and international contexts.

Submission of proposals

We invite conference and symposium proposals for individual papers, paired papers or panels from different parts of Australia, New Zealand and the wider world, and short 'Picture and a 1 000 words' presentations that explore, engage with and/or challenge the conference theme.

Please send by email an abstract of no more than 250 words with the paper title, type (that is, individual, paired, panel or picture), your name, institution/affiliation, and postal address by 30 July 2010 to prushbrook@csu.edu.au.

Publication

Presenters will have the option of writing a paper of up to 3000 words for inclusion in the peer-reviewed conference proceedings, and an additional opportunity of submitting a longer paper to a 2012 special edition of ANZHES's History of Education Review (an 'A' journal in the Australian ERA rankings).

The conference venue

The conference will be convened in the inland New South Wales regional City of Wagga Wagga. Located mid-way between Melbourne and Sydney, Wagga Wagga is easily accessible by car, air and train.

The conference venue is Wagga's Riverine Club, established in 1881 as a retreat for pastoralists and professionals. The Club is located in the heart of Wagga's historical buildings district and adjacent to the Murrumbidgee River. The site was also the location of Wagga's first public school.

Accommodation is available at the Club or at a range of hotels and motels within easy walking distance of the venue. The historic buildings precinct also features a diverse selection of restaurants, bars and coffee shops.
